

Dr. Linnea Nelson grew up in a suburb of Chicago. She received her Bachelor's degree in Psychology and Speech with added certification in special education from Florida State University. During college she competed internationally with the University's synchronized swim team.

She also participated in a research program for autistic children. Following undergraduate school, Dr. Nelson taught secondary special education before returning to school where she received a Master's degree in school psychology and her medical degree from Michigan State University. Her interests include gardening, traveling, music, and theater.

